One Artist Journal

2-Day Workshop, April 28th and April 29th, 2023

9:30-4:00 each day

The wonders that arise within our tactile feelings when we hold a book in our hands provide a sense of comfort, safety, and the essence of a dear friend. Most books that we read though are held and just opened and closed. An Art Journal is so much more with closure attached. When opened and closed many times it will create a pattern that awakens our sense to be present in the moment. And to close the journal the sense of being done signals a sense of letting go. Letting go your thoughts, your words, and your creative on the pages.

This workshop will have you repurposing papers, using found papers and altering with inks and acrylic paints to make gestural marks with collage elements throughout. The time spent together will spark new ideas to carry on the art journaling process far after the workshop is done. Pamphlet stitch will hold it all together. Please Join me in this two-day workshop.
